I like him, but he's still got a lot to learn. I hope they show some growth in his character before season's end. PFT 09-10-2009, 10:26 AM I have to agree with Mad Dog... I'm not really fond of his arrogance. I mean, he was a tight end that was good enough to get drafted in the first round, so he was fine with it. But, he's never been a Steeler that was great at his job. He's always had to struggle. I don't think I could ever really buy into his attitude... but I can always buy into his production. That said, I like him and I hope they bring him along. I just hope it's in a positive direction. steelersfanman7 09-10-2009, 10:31 AM I think his confidence level is higher than it has ever been. He is confident about his ability to play the game. He was the best tight end in the NFL the last couple years. I was surprised at his attitude when he first signed here. I thought he would be a little more humble. Go steelers!!!! 09-10-2009, 10:34 AM I don't know about that. I just 82157476af
